New Appleton Fiction

Last Year's Nest

by Dorothy À Beckett Terrell is a novel with a central theme that will interest a very wide audience. It is the story of how Mrs. Jenny Morris, the eternally youthful widow, marries a man twenty years younger than herself. As it happens he is just the age of her young daughter, Gillian. Miss Terrell has seized upon this situation and built from it a novel that is mighty human. Her characters are exceedingly real, and the reader is held absorbed by the question: Will Gillian and her stepfather elope? To be published February 20. $2.00

MacIvor's Folly

by Hugh MacNair Kahler and Donald Grant Herring, is a novel of action and is written in a notably picturesque and able style. Among the Carolina sandhills the authors show the man MacIvor, the upright Scotchman, who stands out in vigorous contrast to the easy-going decay into which the region has fallen. The other man in the case is of a very different stripe, yet his charm and courtliness exert their spell upon the spirited heroine. Into an exciting course of events these three are swept—until a bullet decides between the two men. To be published February 20. $2.00

THE CAROLINIAN

Rafael Sabatini

The first American novel by "the prince of living story tellers." A new novel with an American setting and an American hero. What better combination could there be for a great popular success?

"The Carolinian' is easily the most carefully written story about American history on record. The author's study of the characters is so thorough that for the first time in fiction or a narrative of any sort, such men as John Rutledge, Colonel Laurence, and Pinckney are made to live. This is a great achievement." —Lyman P. Powell, author and editor of many books on American history.

SUN YAT SEN AND THE CHINESE REPUBLIC

By PAUL LINEBARGER

A VOLUME of authoritative biography, present-day history and interpretation of Chinese life and custom, by an author who lived for years in China and came in daily contact with all classes of people. Judge Linebarger knows intimately Sun Yat Sen, the chief creator of the Chinese Republic, and has worked with him a great deal. Indeed Dr. Sun dictated part of the book and helped with information as to the rest of it. Judge Linebarger wrote this book in China in the course of many months, bringing the manuscript to America late in 1924.

One Hour —and Forever

By T. Everett Harré

Author of "Behold the Woman"

AN idyl of young love, of youth's eternal romance, oversweeping all barriers, possessing a deeper emotional appeal, a profound sex-interest, a finer sense of truth and tolerance than any novel in its field in our time.

It is the true story, based on the actual life of a dazzlingly beautiful prima-donna—a living woman, a world-famous artist (as told to and set down by Mr. Harré) telling of her rise from the depths to fame and glory. $2.00 net.

MEMOIRS OF ARSENE LUPIN

By Maurice LeBlanc

Creator of "Arsene Lupin"

IN Arsene Lupin's own words—this is the story he has long wanted to write—the intimate tale of the great love of his life, and how it led him into those most perplexing adventures which have so long held the public's interest.

Maurice LeBlanc has prevailed on Arsene Lupin to brush aside the curtains of secrecy; and now he reveals, in a manner that quite outdoes his former efforts, the strange crimes and tragedy which were so closely identified with Cagliostro's beautiful daughter, and to which only Arsene Lupin held the key.

THE BOARDER UP AT EM'S

By Anice Terhune

Author of

"The Eyes of the Village"

DRAMA, and a hand-to-hand grip with some of life's most grim realities, color this absorbing new novel by Anice Terhune. Yet throughout, the reader finds the glowing cleanness of soul which was so marked an element of the author's earlier novel, "The Eyes of the Village."

Into its pages creeps the riddle of womanhood. . . A riddle that has been approached from a thousand angles, and is now approached from an astonishingly new one. It is a friendly story that stays close to the soil, and carries the real flavor and substance of rural New England.

Economic Efficiency In Bookselling

An English publisher of note denies that too many books are published—he says that not enough books are bought.

The reason for that may be that not enough books are sold. People don't die of mental starvation if they are not supplied with books—not in any painful way, at least. But they will buy books “if properly approached.”

The effective approach in Chicago—where more than a million potential book buyers abide—is through The Wednesday Book Pages of The Chicago Daily News. The Chicago book reading and buying public is accustomed to look to these pages for book news and reviews—and book-buying information.

Many publishers capitalize this habit*—more of them will do so as they realize how it pays.

The NINTH of NOVEMBER

Is it a great book, this epic picture of life in Berlin during the days of terror and disintegration at the end of the war? Laurence Stallings call it "The first important novel of 1925." The N. Y. Evening Post describes it as "A tremendously dramatic and moving narrative told with unrelenting drive and power." Reviewers unite in acclaiming it as a book to take its place beside the most successful war novels—Under Fire, Three Soldiers, Plumes and Through the Wheat.

The Big Novel

SOUNDINGS

BY A. HAM

Leonard H. Wells of The Powers Mercantile Co., Minneapolis, says:

"I think 'Soundings' is one of the cleanest, most beautifully written pieces of fiction I have read in years. I feel that the relations existing between this daughter and father is a lesson that should be discussed everywhere. It is not often that I become enthusiastic over a novel and perhaps my judgment will not coincide with that of many critics, but to me this is a masterpiece and I believe that you have undoubtedly one of the biggest sellers of the year. It certainly deserves it."

C. R. Dennen of Dennen's Book Shop, Detroit, says:

"In 'Soundings' I feel sure you have the book of the Spring. It is great and will appeal to every reader who likes really good fiction. A fine study of human nature. Here's hoping it will reach what it should,—100,000 copies!"

Eugene L. Herr of Lancaster, Pa., says:

"'Soundings' intrigues the interest from the start and sustains it to the end. It is a clean and wholesome story, yet truly modern in its treatment of sex."

SOUNDINGS

MILTON GIBBS

John Farrar, Editor of The Bookman, says:

"I read 'Soundings' yesterday and believe you have a tremendous success in store for you with it. It held me and moved me in a way that few novels do. 'Soundings' is a love story so deeply conceived, so ably executed that it leaves the reader breathless. It is as striking from an emotional standpoint as anything I have read in years."

Alfred J. La Belle of Macauley Brothers, Detroit, says:

"Without a doubt 'Soundings' is the best novel I have read in a couple of years, due more or less I believe to the underlying theme of motherhood. It is extremely well done and should go a long way. I will do my best to get it started here."

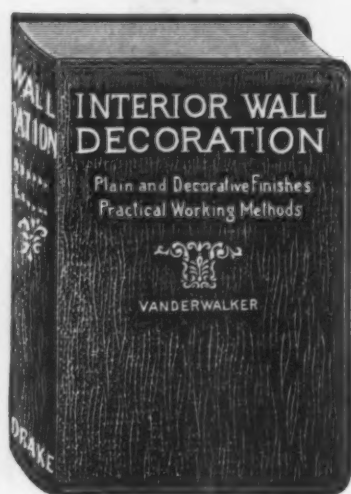

Theodore Lilienthal of Gelber, Lilienthal, Inc., San Francisco, says:

"I want to take this opportunity to tell you that I have not read within the last two years a novel so replete with charm, interest and style as 'Soundings'. The manner in which Mr. Gibbs treats so intimately the English and American types, is in itself a remarkable feat."

As I write this G.B. Stern's THE MATRIARCH has sold since its publication five weeks ago over twice as many copies as any previous book by this brilliant young writer.

During the next four weeks I will advertise THE MATRIARCH more heavily than I have ever advertised any novel.

You can ensure the success of this campaign and the launching of another like it by showing THE MATRIARCH to every customer who bought the last Galsworthy novel. You will effect a sale at least every other time.

I believe in G.B. Stern and will back up to the limit any efforts you can make on her behalf.

Yours faithfully

Merchandising for Publishers

Taking the Long View in Campaign Programs

By Harold C. Kinsey

Cosmopolitan Book Corporation

PLANNING the pre-publication sales of a forthcoming book is in some ways like a political campaign.

If a book is to be published in an intelligent way, the promotion, the advertising and the sales to the trade have to be planned before the travelers start on the road to sell to the trade. This is necessary so that the travelers will be thoroughly posted in what the house behind the book is going to do to publish and sell it successfully.

In my judgment, one of the main reasons why so many books fail to have the proper sale, is because there is too much "hit or miss" method in publishing. All the work that is done to help the dealer remove the book from his stock has got to be planned and coordinated so as to have a continuous stream of advertising and publicity from the date of publication until the campaign is ended. No matter how satisfactory the advance sale is, to be successful the stores have to sell what they buy.

It is assumed that the traveler has already read the books or knows about them thoroughly before starting on the road. If the sales distribution is properly planned by the house, with the help of the traveler, the traveler knows, when he enters a store, what quantity of the various titles he should sell to the buyer, and will make every possible effort to sell the stipulated quantity, and will at no time knowingly oversell.

By "overselling" I mean in this instance, if a certain store's quantity is 25 copies and the buyer, after hearing what the traveler has to say, orders 25 copies without suggestion from the traveler, there should be no attempt made on the traveler's part to start an argument to increase the buyer's quantity to 50 copies, simply because the buyer had ordered of his own accord the quantity that had been planned for this store. It is bad judgment to do this, tho it does happen!

As the traveler's orders arrive in the house, it is like the votes coming in for a candidate on Election Day, and the thrill to those inside comes in seeing how their estimate of the sales is going, and of course the climax comes when all the orders are in and publication date arrives.

When the book is published—and when I say "published," I mean that it should be on sale in all parts of the country on the date of publication and not from ten days to three weeks afterward, due to the fact that many publishers do not allow enough time for transportation—the review copies have already been sent out to the various critics, and the advertising commences, which is very necessary in order to help move the books purchased by the dealers.

The question of advertising books is much discussed, both by those in the book-trade and those who know little or nothing about it. To one not familiar with the publishing business, it is hard to realize that if advertising will sell Wrigley's chewing gum, Campbell's soups, etc., why it will not sell books. Of course advertising sells books, but publishers cannot advertise the same thing year by year, because books cannot be eaten, and unfortunately for us in the business one book may be read hundreds of times, which lessens the possible sale. On the other hand, too many publishers look on advertising as a necessary evil and do it more to please the author or the trade than from the conviction that it will really sell books. I do not say that advertising will make every book sell successfully, because such a statement would be absurd. I do say, however, that advertising well planned will increase the selling possibilities of a book in the vast majority of cases. It must not be spasmodic, and the one planning the appropriation to be spent on a given title should have imagination and vision. The amount to spend on advertising should bear a relation to the number of copies set as the goal to be reached in three or four months, and not depend upon the number of reorders that come in.

Once in a while there is a book published, that without any particular advertising, immediately jumps into the lead and is the most talked-about book of that particular publishing season. Of course, this exception proves the rule, and is simply a matter of chance. For every book that had a big sale by chance there have been numerous books that have been successful, because the publisher planned it by proper advertising.

It is then up to the dealer to focus attention on the new books and do something that will fall in with the effort of the publisher, who is trying to move that stock out of his store. If the season happens to bring a book by an author who already has had successful books in the past, it seems to me that it is to the advantage of the bookseller to push this book to the limit in order to get a good turn-over and a good margin of profit.

In recent years it has become more difficult to get as big an advance sale for any given well-known author as it was four or five years ago. Much of this has been due to the preaching for more frequent turn-overs, and also due to the numerous books published by some houses with the hope that there may be a "Main Street" among them. Notwithstanding that the number of books published in the past few years is not as great as that of ten or fifteen years ago, there are still more books published than can be properly assimilated, unless the publishers do something for some of their books other than offer up a fond prayer that they may sell.

While it is up to the buyer to sell what he buys, it is impossible to sell everything clean and not get an overstock on something. Many times a buyer is so fearful of getting an overstock, that he does not buy as much as he should. Of course it is bad business to buy discounts, and it is just as unwise to lose the discount a bigger quantity would give, if one can sell it.

To merchandise one's stock is as necessary to a publisher as it is to a retailer, and to gage the sale of a book is one of the most difficult things in the business. Naturally, a publisher does not want to be out of a title that is selling, and on the other hand he has a horror of overstocks that have to be sold at "remainder" prices, frequently for less than the cost of manufacture. In our case, after we plan the advance sales of a book, we decide on the number we will print, regardless of how the orders come in, because the larger the edition printed, the cheaper it is, and it is not nearly so risky as to print future editions, which one would have to do to be continually playing safe. The result is that thru planning sales and advertising long before the book is sold to the trade, we have had no overstocks to sell as jobs except in two instances, which were rather unique in their way. Frequently one edition will last an entire year, but the economies we save by having one edition, rather than two or more, make up for the risk of guessing right on the extra editions together with their higher cost of manufacture.

Buying in small quantities and reordering frequently make it difficult for the publisher to gage his edition, no matter how confident he may be of the book; besides, very frequently a dealer will not get his proper sale buying in this way. It frequently happens that if a dealer buys 100 copies of a new book, he will sell them in 90 days or less, whereas if his initial quantity was 25 copies and he reordered from time to time, as he might require them, his sale would only be 60 or 70 copies in the same period. This is because so many wait until they are either out or almost out of stock before reordering. If a dealer is at some little distance from the market, it is entirely possible and probable that he will be entirely out of stock for several days before his new stock arrives. The result is that he will lose about 7c. a copy on discount and not get the sale that he should get, and the publisher will sell fewer books.

The average publisher does not begin to show the profit on a year's business to which he is entitled. This is due primarily to the number of books published without a definite plan, and the investment each one entails, and the lack of merchandising, to use a much abused word. Most publishers have too much money tied up in inventory compared with the volume of business they do.

It would not be tolerated in any other line of business, and when one considers this happens in some instances in which a book is accepted because the publishers do not care to offend the author—possibly—and have him go to another publisher, or because out of a given number of publications there is bound to be a certain percentage that will be successful. As far as the authors are concerned, I have found them with few exceptions, open to reason and no more anxious for a poor book to appear than the publisher. Exceptions but prove the rule and every publisher has his exceptions.

Of course discrimination must be used by bookseller and publisher alike. Every book cannot sell 100,000, but the average sale can be increased from the usual pitifully small quantity to at least double the quantity, which would result in an increased profit to bookseller and publisher alike.

The Traveler: Before and After

By "The Home Office"

THE notorious hair tonic in its "before and after" results as shown in the advertisements, has nothing on what might be seen in a series of published pictures of our travelers before they leave on their trips and then, after they have been out a while. As fellow members of "The Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Travelers" what can we do about it?

In a picture marked "before" you will see our traveler at his home office full of enthusiasm for "one of the finest lines ever taken out to the trade," and keen over the wonderful possibilities for large reorder sales on fall books which will "carry over into the spring" and become "permanent items on the publisher's list." His feelings, as you can see reflected in his face, are kindly toward all as he steps out to play the game as a representative of the house and as he plans his trip which he thinks will be of help both to his own house and to the book-trade.

The picture marked "after" we can assure you is really the same gentleman altho you would not recognize him. For two months he has been out on the road, and now in his broken rest on the sleeper he mumbles over the replies he has come to know so well: "I am not going to buy over twenty-five copies of any fiction this year no matter what the book is because so many books are being brought out." "Those three books I can't buy because short stories don't sell." "I will take one of each of those four books but none of the others." "If I get any orders I can send them in." "The people in our town are not book buyers and don't buy books of that sort." "A reorder on A's novel? No, I have one copy here somewhere. Yes, it is being asked for more frequently than any book we have here but I can't afford to stock this because people will buy it and then I won't sell this other fiction I have on my tables." "You may not think my order very large, and, of course, I would like to place a larger order for you personally but you don't realize how many foreigners we have in our city."

And now we might listen to Mr. Buyer's disturbed slumber the same night as he tosses from side to side after a day of listening to eight travelers in addition to selling the more important customers, doing part of the bookkeeping and drawing checks for local charity drives, all of which he must support because he is in business on Main Street: "Now Mr. Blank, five copies of that novel is a perfectly absurd order. Just look at this advertisement we are going to put in the New York Times. The author had a cousin who once lived in this town and you certainly want to have copies to meet this demand. Five copies wouldn't even make a counter display. See this fine poster we will furnish you, and here's a four color post-card which we will imprint for you and all you have to do is the addressing and pay the postage. These other three novels are by authors you know. Yes, I know their other books haven't done so much but these are positively the best books these men have ever done, and our house believes in the future of these men and we ask your support in giving them a chance. On these two books I have been counting on hundred lots from you. Five? Why, this is one of the leaders of our spring fiction! You won't be able to take care of your first day's orders on such a number. All right, we will make it ten but you will watch it, won't you?"

This is more or less of a burlesque—mostly more. Back of it there is possibly an idea—in fact it suggests several ideas, but the editor has asked for emphasis only on the topic, "Before the Traveler Goes," touching on the responsibility of the publisher; for preparation, the time taken for preparation and some conception of the traveler's responsibility.

With most publishers there is today a feeling that the traveler should go out not so much to get additional quantities on orders as to represent the publisher and to be of assistance to the trade making for a better understanding and to carry sales helps in the broadest sense.

As one of the best sales managers in New York has said, "the best traveler is one who at all times realizes that he is a representative of the house and who goes out to sell ideas and not books." The sale of books of a particular publisher's line will follow the sale of an idea if the idea is good and if the publisher's line is good.

Conditions have been changing in the past few years. More and more booksellers are alive to sales opportunities and are looking for ideas. The publisher realizes that if the store does not sell books in general he is not going to sell his particular books. The publisher realizes that if the book-store can increase its business 25 per cent thru new sales ideas and if he keeps up the standard of his publications, he is going to get his share of this increase. The efforts made to increase an order from 25 to 50 copies does not necessarily mean the ultimate sale of more books nor does it necessarily help either the store or the publisher. The passing along to one store of a sales idea which has been found successful in the previous town may result in an initial order of twenty-five of the book in question but reorders may bring the total to one hundred because of the sales idea.

With few exceptions, retailers, travelers and publishers are together working toward a better understanding. Publishers are preparing their travelers better than ever before and devoting much more time and expense to this preparation. The personnel of the traveling fraternity has never been at as high a point as it is today and, knowing other lines, I think it is safe to say that few lines in the country are as intelligently represented as is the publishing business. The number of book outlets is growing tremendously, and the attitude of the store towards the publisher is a much more wholesome one than ever before. The store is realizing increasingly that the publisher and the retailer are interdependent and that the time spent with the traveler is profitably invested.

In spite of all that the publisher and traveler do, many questions will be asked which the traveler cannot answer. The traveler is often blamed for this and once in a great while rightly. The average question, however, which he cannot answer would meet with a similar fate if it were put up to the average editor in the publishing house. The traveler spends several months of the year on the road. He has to have some vacation in spite of the idea which some have that traveling in itself is a vacation. At the home office there is a certain amount of accumulated correspondence which requires his attention and certain routine work in getting his material together, checking up his accounts, packing his trunk, etc. In the time that is left, the traveler really does much in preparing to meet the trade. He reads as many of the books in proof as are ready and as he has time for, usually ten or fifteen. With the others he usually goes carefully over the table of contents, the preface and a chapter or so. We can hardly expect him to read every word of "The Embryology of the Honey Bee" and if he did perhaps he wouldn't understand it—but then, does the buyer?

Most houses prepare for the travelers rather complete Selling Points, some of them running to many typewritten pages, giving every bit of information which can be gathered together with respect to the author and book. In addition to this there is the regular semi-annual list of publications which is the salesman's textbook. Every house has at least one conference of all salesmen. Some houses extend this to several conferences and some devote as much as a week to sales meetings. There is room left for a great improvement in the preparation of the travelers but each year conditions have been greatly improved and every one is working toward this end.

There are two things which we must pay particular attention to: First, we must all realize that the publisher and bookseller are mutually dependent. The traveler is helping the bookseller as much as the bookseller is helping the publisher—or at least he can and should. Few publishers are as concerned with quantities as they are with representative initial orders, with frequent reorders as the response to a book is seen. However, if the traveler comes in to help and only asks a reasonable representation then it must be realized that, in all fairness and as a matter of good business, the store must be alert to following up each and every lead which shows that there is greater life in any particular book. A long and steady sale on more books is more to the advantage of both retailer and publisher than a short life even if it be a merry one.

In the second place, provided all will agree to this hypothesis that bookseller and publisher are interdependent and can be mutually helpful, retailers will see that it will help them if they conserve as far as practicable the traveler's time and expense. A cooperation between buyer and traveler can facilitate the work for both. At all times the buyer must realize that he is dealing with a representative of a publishing house who is there to help him and that he is not dealing with a salesman who is trying to overload him with books of which he cannot dispose.

In conclusion, when the average traveler comes into the book-store, isn't he pretty cheerful, showing every desire to be helpful? For this sort, which is the usual sort, we must ask on the part of the trade the same effort which the traveler himself is making. The difference between the "before and after" pictures with which this story was started is less noticeable than it was a while ago, and we ask your cooperation in putting a smile on the picture at the right so that there will be no question of "What's Wrong with this Picture?"

Mid-Winter Book Meetings

FEBRUARY and March bring the high points of interest in book-trade meetings:

Wednesday, February 18th, the Annual Ladies' Night of the New York Booksellers' League at the Hotel Brevoort, with Dahn Gopal Mukerji and others.

Thursday, February 19th, Scribner night at The Booksellers' Association of Philadelphia, Franklin Inn Club, with Mulholland, the magician, and other features.

Thursday, February 19th, Opening of the Bookselling Course at the College of the City of New York, Lexington Ave., and 23d St., at 6:45.

Thursday, March 5th, Annual Banquet of the Women's National Book Association at the Hotel McAlpin, with A. Hamilton Gibbs, Edward O'Brien and others.

Optimism—A Trade Asset

“ONE of the important qualifications for a bookstore buyer is pessimism,” once wrote a practitioner of the art, “a pessimism of sufficient intensity to meet the over-buoyant optimism of the publishers’ representatives and to tone it down to a working basis.”

But suppose the traveler came loaded with a pessimism of his own about trade in general and his own line in particular, would the bookstore buyer be any better pleased? Has not the optimism of the traveler tided the retailer over many blue Mondays and brought to the manager’s desk workable optimism as well as air bubbles.

If what is feared by the buyer is that he will be carried away by buoyant optimism into a flood of over-buying, is not the antidote not a smoke screen of pessimism, but a more thoro collection of facts as to his own outlets and past performances with similar books? A bookstore buyer with accurate records has all the antidote he needs to threatened over-buying, and with that sort of check at his elbow he can greet the visitors from the East with as hearty a welcome as good trade friendship demands.

Many of the best travelers in the book field have had retail experience and know the problems of the retail buyer, but not so many retailers have even had the traveler’s experience. But if they have not had the actual traveler’s life, they can at least put themselves in imagination into the place of the traveler and by doing so will better judge of the value of the traveler’s optimism and better temper their reception.

Books That Lead Astray

ANOTHER well-worn theory seems likely to be damaged by the news stories that have gone out in connection with the capture of Gerald Chapman, the most desperate of American criminals since Jesse James. In studying his personality, the reporter did not neglect to inquire into his reading, and the report has it that he used to read himself to sleep with the “Oxford Book of English Verse.” Just what deduction we are to make from this is not asserted. He would have been running more true to form if he had selected his reading from some more desperate literature than an anthology of poetry.

The Bookselling Course

ON Thursday of next week, the second year of the New York book-selling course will be begun, at the College of the City of New York, at Lexington Ave. and Twenty-third St., and it is to be hoped that the same large attendance as last year will be brought out.

Step by step the book-trade must be provided with increased facilities for training and study, in order that the bookshops of the country may adequately measure up to the new responsibilities being put upon them by the public. Each year should see new developments in this field until the pioneer steps, such as Miss Graham’s course in Philadelphia or this series in New York, shall be looked back upon as the beginnings of a great movement.

The International Correspondence School has become interested and is preparing a course on bookselling. Other centers, such as Chicago and Boston, should be in the field with courses, made possible by the intensive book activity of their areas. Gradually, even more specialized education will be possible, and, with each passing year, the book salesmen will be able to give the public more and more intelligent and adequate book service.

Pleads for Dry Convention

IN the Bulletin of the American Booksellers' Association, President McKee prints a letter which he had recently received, calling attention to the fact that the last Convention had been marred because "there are certain men who seem to think that it is a brilliant thing to bring liquors to the dinner. Some of these folks were quite in evidence at the New York dinner, and their conduct was a reflection on the American Booksellers' Association. I believe that the Chicago committee could make it perfectly plain in all their announcements that such practices would not be tolerated."

Mr. McKee has undoubtedly printed this with some understanding that this subject is in many people's minds. Chicago, along with its reputation as a great business center, has a reputation second only to New York's for being in easy touch with the sources of liquor supply. It has been current comment in the trade that there are plenty of Chicago visitors who are familiar enough with the city to know these points of contact. Whether these people will have proper respect for the Convention and for the point of view of the average delegate, remains to be seen, but there is no doubt that the prestige of these Conventions might be seriously marred this year by a lack of consideration and good sense in this matter. President McKee is right in making this point early, and the local committee should reiterate it.

Getting Salesmen to Read More

"WHILE it is true," says an editorial in Printers' Ink, "that everybody has at least 720 minutes each day to use in work, sleep and relaxation, the salesman has more time to invest than almost any other man. The time he travels to get to his prospect and the time he spends waiting to see him can and should be invested. Many sales managers are insisting on their men doing more reading in their now unproductive time. As the sales manager for a hosiery company says: 'I want my men to do more reading in 1925. They should be able to find time to read at least two good business publications regularly and one good book a month. The books should be the ones which have lasted for a while. There are hundreds of good books which will inspire a man, make his conversation more interesting, develop his personality and give him the finest sort of a background for selling. I believe a habit of regular reading is the most valuable single habit a salesman can form.'

"This may be a strong statement on the value of reading but there are many presidents of companies who give to the habit of reading and remembering what they read, most of the credit for their rise from humble beginnings.

"The president of a big chain store organization is so impressed with the value of reading in the development of his sales force that he maintains a carefully selected library for its use and during the year offers a substantial prize for the best letter showing how a book or magazine article has helped the individual.

"The man who does more reading will have a greater number of ideas and a more interesting personality at the end of the year. The sales manager who induces his men to do more reading is thus helping to turn unproductive time into valuable assets for his firm."

Books as Easter Gifts

WITH Valentine Day behind him, the bookseller may well turn to the field of books as Easter gifts. The Board of Trade of the American Booksellers' Association, at its January meeting, passed a resolution which directed its secretary to express to the publishers the hope that, in their book advertising during the Lenten season, they would do all they could to emphasize the place of books as Easter gifts, with perhaps some such slogan as "Buy Books as Easter Gifts." Easter comes this year on the 12th of April. There is still plenty of time to build up a promotion scheme for books for the Lenten and Easter seasons which will be effective because of its cumulative effect.

Booksellers have always found advantage in a late Easter, especially in the northern half of the country. Easter decorations seem more appropriate with real spring in the air, and the expansive mood of Easter giving comes with sunshine.

Eliminating Waste in Sales Territories

New Pamphlet Issued by Department of Commerce

THE most recent bulletin of the Department of Commerce has just been received, showing by maps how salesmen and organizations may increase income thru proper planning of sales territories. "Thousands of dollars are unnecessarily spent each year in covering territory according to state boundaries instead of following lines of natural trade areas," says the pamphlet entitled "Planning Salesmen's Territories." Too many sales executives look upon the red line of a state or county boundary as a bunker which they do not dare to cross, thereby causing one of the most widespread wastes in our distribution machinery, the bulletin continues. If it costs from $30 to $50 per day to keep a good salesman on the road, says the pamphlet, it certainly pays to consider most carefully the way to utilize his time to the best advantage. A salesman waiting for train connections at a railroad junction, or doubling back on his track, or stopping just before reaching a good town to avoid crossing a state line, is not getting the best results for himself or the company. Yet this is what happens when territories are laid out with too little regard to transportation facilities and trade areas.

Full consideration must be given, the pamphlet points out, to the utilization of all the modern methods of communication. Actual examples are cited of the efficient use of automobiles to increase the salesman's ability to make contacts with his customers, but this is only desirable after the territory has been analyzed for the density of the market. Bus lines are playing an increasing part in our modern world, and sales managers should take these into consideration in planning efficient routes for salesmen.

Not only the success of the sales department is involved in the proper planning of sales territories, but the welfare and happiness of the salesman should also be taken into consideration. The bulletin points out that some companies take great care to keep salesmen at work in territories where they may conveniently reach their homes. This also gives full play to the salesman's intimate knowledge of the territory in which he is living.

An analysis of the sales plans of a number of concerns has been made, showing that remarkable results have been achieved by careful and scientific methods of approach to the problem of properly routing salesmen. Numerous examples taken from actual practice have been cited to show how the country can be covered by salesmen who work their territories from some dominating city in which they live. A full consideration is given to the "star" salesman who is a high-salaried man and makes comparatively long jumps between the towns he is covering.

Methods of covering the markets, even as far away as Alaska, are given by the bulletin, which quotes the plans of houses which are covering that territory from Seattle at the present time. In addition to this, there is a comprehensive survey not only of the large but the smaller territories in the United States, with definite suggestions as to the most efficient routing of salesmen to cover them both from the angle of intensity and the class of commodity sold.

Julius Klein, the director, says in a foreword to the pamphlet: "One link in the chain of selling costs—planning of salesmen's territories—has in many cases been a member which weakens the entire structure of otherwise efficient and productive sales departments. The weakness of this one link is usually due to the lack of fair and equitable layout of sales territories."

The pamphlet, written by G. E. Bittner, of the Domestic Commerce Division, issued as Trade Information Bulletin No. 314, includes a set of six maps to show the wide variety of sales territory plans actually in use. It may be obtained by request to the Domestic Commerce Division, Department of Commerce, at Washington.

The Publisher's Traveler

What Is the Bookseller's Point of View?

PROBABLY no persons in the book-trade are placed more squarely between the devil and the deep sea than the publishers' travelers. They present a perfect target for harsh thoughts and, not seldom, words. The bookseller demands to know why they have sold him so many books; the publisher, why so few. But while the publisher's complaint tends to cease here, the bookseller's only begins. In fact, from occasional wails that arise, one might almost be led to believe that the bookseller's life would be perfectly happy if only there were no publishers' travelers to inveigle him into buying books. Yet let a traveler, during his spring or fall trip, fail to call on a bookstore, and immediately the air is filled with lightning that flashes Ajax-like from the neglected bookseller.

Apparently the publisher's traveler, however welcome or unwelcome, is a necessity. He is the only point of personal contact between the Siamese twins of the book-trade, the publisher and the bookseller. Yet there is too much smoke of dissatisfaction rising from the booksellers' camp for even the most optimistic person to believe that all is well. Last March, Marion E. Dodd, manager of the Hampshire Bookshop of Northampton, Mass., broke into the Publishers' Weekly with a sharp flash of fire condemning the present methods employed by publishers for the distribution of new books. A. A. Kroch, of Kroch's International Bookstore in Chicago, was more tolerant and fell back upon the "book buyer's sixth sense" as the only possible solution of the problem. "A Publisher" presented a harrowing picture of the publishers' selling difficulties; but no one suggested a way out.

It is with the hope of discovering this "way out" that the Publishers' Weekly submits this set of specific questions to the booksellers, relating to the publisher's traveler; his good points, his weaknesses, but above all, his possibilities as the means of bringing bookseller and publisher into closer and more efficient harmony. Beside answering the questionnaire we hope that booksellers who are interested in general trade developments will send general suggestions. Under the impetus of the questions, the bookseller's mind may travel farther along the road and produce the solutions of the problems for which both booksellers and publishers have been waiting.

There is, of course, no panacea. None was expected. But the answers and suggestions which come in response to the questionnaire will be sure to contain much food for analysis.

The Publishers' Weekly hopes that its subscribers will take this effort to analyze the relations between the traveler and the retailer seriously and will sit down with these questions in hand and write a letter to the Publishers' Weekly, which letters will be studied by the one who prepared the questions and will furnish the basis of comment and discussion in a later issue of the Weekly. Retailers who help on this will confer an obligation on the editors and will be doing something, we feel sure, that is for the benefit of the whole book-trade.

DO you remember last summer we had in the Publishers' Weekly a very interesting discussion about the virtues and failings of the publisher's traveler and his place in the present scheme of things in the book business?

The questionnaire on the next page grew out of that discussion; and we hope many booksellers who read these questions over, will take their fountain pens in hand and answer them for us.

Your answers to the questions will be the basis of an article which will be written for the Publishers' Weekly by the one who made the questionnaire.

A Few Questions for Buyers and Booksellers

1. Do you want publishers' travelers to call on you?
2. Does the traveler's information prove of real assistance to you in deciding whether or not to purchase the book?
3. What do you want to know about a book before you purchase it?

On Fiction?	On Biography?
On Travel?	On Essays?
On Science?	On Poetry?
On Juveniles?
4. Do you feel that you can rely on what the traveler says concerning a book? If not, why?
5. Would it be of advantage to you if the traveler knew as much concerning the book as the editors who have recommended its publication?
6. Do you like to have the traveler give you written synopses and sales material concerning books, to read over before ordering?
7. If so, do you like to have such material sent in advance of the traveler's visit?
8. Do you want to read or look thru books before you order?
9. Do you always examine the work of authors who have been best sellers to see whether their latest production has equal appeal?
10. What governs your order of a first novel by an unknown author?
11. How, in general, do you regulate the number of books you order in advance of publication thru the publishers' traveler?
12. To what extent does the personality of the traveler effect your book orders?
13. Does there arise any feeling of antagonism between you and the traveler? If so, why?
14. Do you buy single copies of books which you are not sure will sell? If so, why?
15. What service or information would you like to have from the traveler to aid you both in buying and selling that at present you do not receive?

16. Do you ever have the traveler talk to your salesmen regarding a book which you have purchased and which they must sell?
17. Do you ever suggest to the traveler books you would like to see published, and which you believe his House would be especially fitted to publish?
18. Do you ever take up with the traveler the matter of practical advertising co-operation between the publisher and your bookstore? If so, along what lines?
19. What, briefly, is your idea of the ideal publisher's traveler?

Travelers Organize

A BROADENING spirit of fellowship is developing among the traveling representatives of the book publishers, a new sense of comradeship and need of interchange of information and suggestion. Each year, more and more young men enter into this field, traveling up and down the land for months at a time and thus serving as the bond between the author and publisher and the bookseller who must present the product to his community. As the market extends, the areas covered are broadening, and there becomes increased reason for friendly contact on the road, where exchange of information as to routes, dates, etc., can make the problem of covering extended territories much more easy and effective.

Seeing the need of such development, an informal committee of five, with August H. Gehrs of Harcourt, Brace & Company as chairman and Raymond L. Bond of Dodd, Mead & Company as secretary, has drawn up a full program for such an association, to be known as the "Associated Book Travelers." The other members of the organization committee were Leon B. Archer of Cosmopolitan Book Corporation, Edward J. Vass of Small, Maynard & Company, and Henry M. Snyder, whose office is at 2 West 45th St., who will act as treasurer.

The annual meeting will be held the latter part of December each year, but a preliminary meeting will be arranged for the latter part of April, when a great many men are in the city. Until the first annual meeting, the present group will take care of the affairs of the new organization.

The constitution and by-laws have been very carefully developed, so that full control of the organization will be in the hands of the men of the road, with complete opportunity for individual initiative in bringing new blood into the directorate at each election. Any man identified with the wholesale sales department of an American book publisher can be a member, these new memberships to be handled by a Membership Committee.

There will be four officers to hold office for one year and three members on the Board of Governors who will have three-year terms. The officers elected at the meeting of December 22nd will be inaugurated into office at the annual dinner held the following week, and their terms of office will begin in January. The vice president will serve as chairman of the Committee on Entertainment, such entertainments to include the annual banquet, paid for by funds of the association supplemented by such voluntary subscriptions as are needed.

The Membership Committee has power to make examination and inquiry respecting the character and qualifications of the member proposed, and a unanimous vote of this committee is necessary for election. If this vote is not unanimous, the application may be carried to the Board of Governors.

The dues of the association are placed very low, in order to encourage all to join—$2 per year, and a first meeting will be held in April.

The insignia of the new organization appears at the top of this article.

Alice McAlister Skinner's Book Shop at Winnetka, Ill.

A BOOK SHOP has just been opened by Alice McAlister Skinner at Winnetka, Illinois. It is the only bookstore between Evanston and Waukegan, a distance of some thirty miles. A large show room formerly used as an automobile sales stall has been partitioned into a two-room store by a wall filled with shelves. The shelves are painted a pale gray as is the whole interior. The rest of the decorations are in pleasant harmony, broken here and there by a touch of color. A general stock of books is carried, in addition to the late fiction. Beside the selection of books, oil paintings, etchings, book plates, and stationery are sold. The shop has made a place for itself in the life of the community, and fulfills a long felt need in that section of Illinois.

The Author and The Publisher

A Series of Articles

I

IN a book published early in 1794, and written by that then very popular novelist, Charlotte Smith, we have found the following declaration, prominently printed on a page by itself:—

ADVERTISEMENT

"So long a period having elapsed since the speedy publication of 'The Wanderings of Warwick' in two volumes was announced, the publisher conceives he should be wanting in that respect which he owes to the public, were he now silently to publish the work in one, without stating in his own exculpation, that both the delay, and the promising it in two volumes, are imputable solely to the author—to whom he leaves the task of justifying her own conduct."

This is an interesting and, to modern eyes, a remarkable pronouncement. One hundred and thirty years ago a publisher could dare to incorporate in a new novel by one of his star novelists a formal denial of his own responsibility in a matter of book-making and book-issuing. He could venture to throw the blame—in print and in every copy of the book distributed—on this author, retiring from the buffer position between writer and public that is now so inescapable an element in the publisher's unhappy pilgrimage.

In fact, of course, so long ago as 1794 the publisher was not the independent functionary that he has now become. Certainly he often paid the manufacture of a book and paid the author too (in the case of Charlotte Smith we know he did), but he was not so firmly placed in the book-producing hierarchy as to be unable at will to throw off the responsibilities of office and let his authors meet in person the penalties of their artistic temperament.

How are things changed! Picture Miss Charlotte Smith of 1794—an authoress with six novels to her credit, a literary agent, a friend or two in Fleet Street, horn spectacles and a Chelsea flat. A parcel waits her on the breakfast table, and on the top of it a pile of letters. One, from a society photographer, asks for the favor of a sitting; one, from a Baptist Congregation in the Middle West, asks for signed copies of her works to help the faithful of North Wallaby to a harmonium; one is a card for the next month's meeting of a literary club, at which a lot of novelists will tell each other fibs about their sales. The parcel contains "author's copies" of her forthcoming work. She cuts the string, unwraps and, purring, takes a book in hand. The jacket?—oh, all right; one must have something of the kind. The binding?—quite a pretty blue, but the lettering is a little blurred. . . .

And then, after the title-page, she finds a paragraph—alone upon the page, in large type, irremovable.

PUBLISHERS' NOTE

"Messrs. Leadham and Loiter* desire to inform the reader of this story that not they, but Miss Charlotte Smith herself is to blame for the fact that a book of less than fifty thousand words is published at the high price of seven shillings and six pence net. They hope that Miss Charlotte Smith will make it convenient to explain to the public why, if she could not supply a book of normal length, she could not accept a smaller advance-payment than that earlier agreed upon. Messrs. Leadham and Loiter, having been compelled to pay Miss Charlotte Smith a good deal more for her short-measured book than it is ever likely to earn, had no option but to issue it at full novel price."

Picture the turmoil! What telephonings to her trade-union secretary, and, in the streets about the Strand, what anxious agent-faces! What curling lips among the buyers at the libraries, who are invited to increase their orders for this latest work!

Poor Leadham and poor Loiter—glorious, but pitiful. They will see first Miss Charlotte Smith, and then this author and then that, pick up indignant skirts, and walk away to where best sellers have red carpets spread, and where a publisher will take the blame, the risk, the mockery and the loss for all and every of their charming vagaries.

A tale, then, that was the truth in 1794 becomes today the merest phantasy. What is the reason of the change? Are publishers today but pigmies beside the giants of long ago? If so, it is strange that their position and activity should have grown stronger and more ceaseless now than it was. Are authors terrible and powerful where once they were contemptible and weak? It needs some casuistry to read weakness into the views of Swinburne on his publishers, into the publishing history of Sir Walter Scott. Perhaps the world is better than it was, and business-partners more polite and self-advancement less desired? In this matter also we must confess to scepticism.

The truth is that the whole modern relation of author and publisher is too complex for summary in a phrase. Because the matter is one of more general interest than many of those connected with the trade of book-making, we have the fancy to explore it. Our survey must include such themes as these:—

- (1) Types of publisher: the ogre, the enthusiast, the dear old muddler, the business man (and others);
- (2) Types of author: the genius, the fuss-budget, the seller who deserves success, the seller who does not (and others);
- (3) The literary agent;
- (4) The eternal triangle.

When the survey is complete, readers of every kind will have a guide to modern literary economics. The author will know how to approach publishers, or, if he prefers, how to avoid them; the publisher will learn what authors think about when they cannot go to sleep, and will, in consequence, himself contrive to keep awake; the book-buyer and book-borrower will have a glimpse of the struggles, hopes and schemes compressed between the covers of the volume lying so demurely by his side; booksellers will look along their shelves and, with new eyes, see every spotless wrapper as a cloak of Monna Vanna—a sober covering to an unsuspected battlefield. There will remain the literary agent. What of new knowledge will he gain from these illuminating articles? Little enough, alas; for from his keen unprejudiced perception are no secrets hid.

Best Sellers in Fiction During the First Quarter of the Twentieth Century

By Irving Harlow Hart

Professor of Rural Education, Iowa State Teachers' College

THE classification of books and authors in the tables following has been made from the lists of best sellers published in The Bookman from 1900 to 1918 and in Books of the Month from 1919 to 1924. All percentages less than ten have been rejected. In other words, a book must have been mentioned by at least ten per cent of the booksellers reporting in any one month in order to have its score recorded.

If these lists of best sellers furnish with any degree of accuracy a standard of measurement, it would appear that the popularity of "Main Street" and of "If Winter Comes" have exceeded that of any other books published during this period. "If Winter Comes" appeared successively in the lists for twenty months, from August 1921 to March, 1923. Its score in the first months of its appearance in the lists gave no promise of pre-eminent popularity, but it continued to appear with increasing prominence until it obtained first place. No other book except "Pollyanna" had so long a run of popularity, but in the case of both these books the relatively low ranking received in a number of monthly lists accounts for the failure to receive a total score proportionate to the number of months they were included in the lists.

"Main Street," on the contrary, sprang into almost immediate popularity and maintained a relatively high rank thruout most of the sixteen months of its run. Except in the cases of Runkle's "Helmet of Navarre" and Streeter's "Dere Mable" no book by a comparatively unknown author attained first place in the first month of its appearance. On the other hand, the influence of the previous popularity of books by the same author is shown by the fact that Lewis's "Babbitt," Hutchinson's "This Freedom," and Zane Grey's "Wanderer of the Waste Land" and "Call of the Canyon" all ranked first in the months of their mention. Numerous other examples of the same occurrence might be cited.

Every year of the quarter century contributes its quota to the list of one hundred. Taken as a whole, this list may be accepted as inclusive of the books of highest popularity during the years from 1900 thru 1924. There are, doubtless, other books whose popularity, if absolutely accurate measurement were possible, may have been sufficient to justify inclusion, thereby displacing certain of those low in the list. It is not claimed that this summary does more than to present in ordered and organized form the data obtained from the booksellers' lists.

The One Hundred Books of Fiction Ranking Highest in the Lists of Best Sellers Between 1900 and 1925

Rank	Author	Title	Year	Months	Score
1	Lewis	"Main Street"	1920-22	16	1000.4
2	Hutchinson	"If Winter Comes"	1921-23	20	992.4
3	Barclay	"Rosary"	1910-11	17	903.5
4	Hull	"Sheik"	1921-22	17	886.0
5	Churchill	"Inside of the Cup"	1913-14	16	881.5
6	Wells	"Mr. Britling Sees It Through"	1916-17	14	851.0

One Hundred Favorites

IN connection with the publishing of the volume entitled "One Thousand Best Books," edited by Asa Don Dickinson, Doubleday, Page & Company have printed a hanger on heavy paper listing in large type the names of the hundred books which have appeared most frequently in the various published lists of best books from the time of Sir John Lubbock to the present day. The heading for the hanger is, "How Many of These Books Have You Read?" and at the bottom there is a double slogan, "Taste at the Public Library Then Buy at the Bookstore." The poster may be had from Doubleday at 25 cents a copy, and it should be useful to hang in bookstore windows or on the walls of the shop and serve to encourage the reading of the world's greatest literature.

McFadden in Anti-Censorship

A NEW organization calling itself "The National Council for the Protection of Literature and the Arts" has been formed in New York, with headquarters at 30 East Forty-Second Street, and, according to the plans announced, will endeavor to coordinate the interests of authors, artists and publishers of all kinds.

The president of the association is Douglas H. Cooke, head of the Leslie-Judge Company, and there is also in the group, Peter J. Brady, prominent labor leader in New York, Guy L. Harrington of the Macfadden Publications, Courtland Smith, secretary of the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America, and William A. de Ford of the Hearst interests.

Censorship Case Completed

THE prosecution of Thomas Seltzer for the publishing of three books, "Women in Love" by D. H. Lawrence, "Casanova's Homecoming" by Arthur Schnitzler and "A Young Girl's Diary," anonymous, first brought into the courts in July, 1923, has been settled by the withdrawing from circulation and the destruction of the plates for the latter two titles. John S. Sumner, secretary of the Society for the Suppression of Vice, has, following this result, withdrawn his suit, which was pending before Supreme Court Justice Tompkins.

Chicago Proceeds with Program Making

ANOTHER recognition of the increased importance of women in the bookselling field is evident from the appointment of Josephine Greene as chairman of the Program Committee for the Chicago Convention. This action was taken at the Convention Committee meeting on January 22nd, and Mrs. Greene held the first meeting of her Committee February 11th. She has the reputation of carrying thru effectively any work she undertakes, and the Association will give her full backing in this important task.

The Forty Best Motion Pictures of 1924

EACH year the National Board of Review prints a list of what it considers the best films of the year, a difficult and delicate selection to make but one that is worth attempting. A difference between books and films from the public's point of view immediately comes to mind in looking over such a list. If one has missed any of these forty best films, there is no sure chance that it may be shown nearby again. Yet the one who glances down the list of the forty best books of the year can go to the nearest bookshop and obtain any volume that interests him.

Of the list of forty films that have been selected, more than half are from material which made its reputation first in the book or play form. The seventeen which appeared first in book form are as follows:

"Bill" ("Crainquebille")
 "Captain Blood"
 "The Clean Heart"
 "Cytherea"
 "Dorothy Vernon of Haddon Hall"
 "Greed" ("McTeague")
 "The Iron Horse"
 "Janice Meredith"
 "Monsieur Beaucaire"
 "North of 36"
 "Peter Pan"
 "The Ridin' Kid from Powder River"
 "Romola"
 "The Sea Hawk"
 "Tess of the D'Urbervilles"
 "Wanderer of the Wasteland"
 "Yolanda"

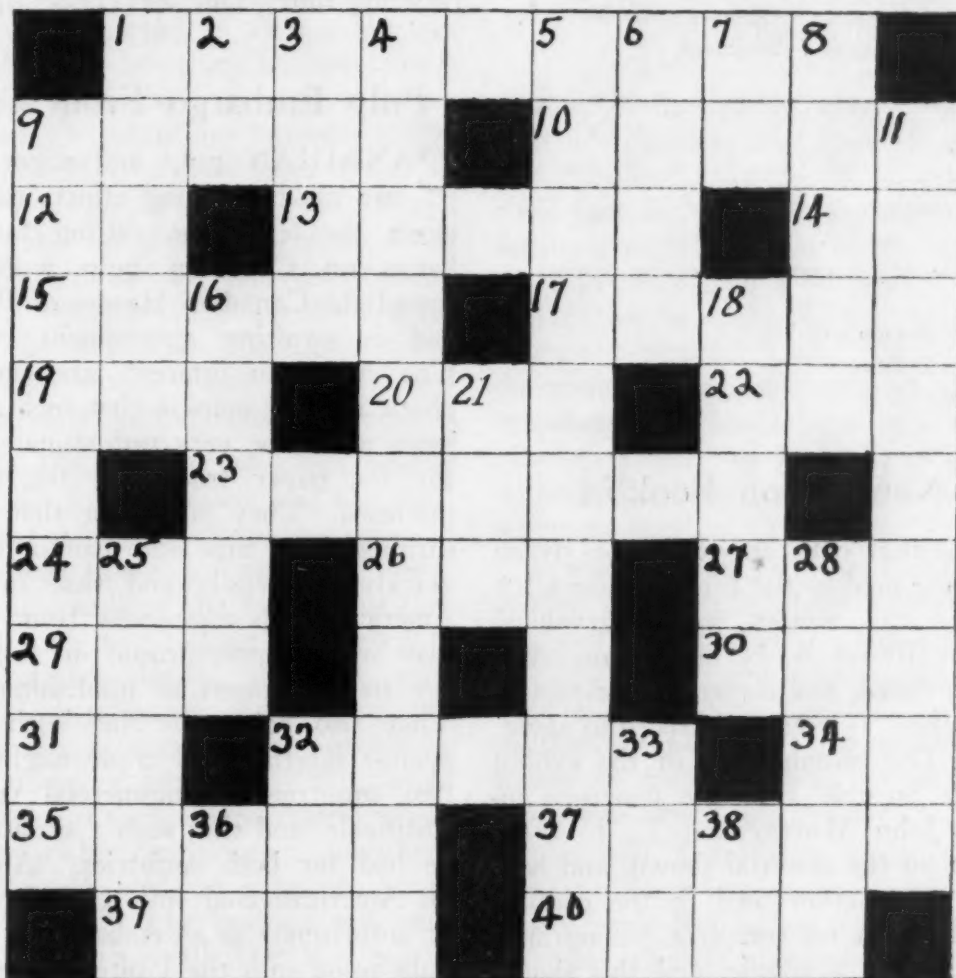

Crossword Puzzle Contest

Get Out Last Week's Issue. It's Not Too Late to Start

THIS is the second of three Cross Word Puzzles which will appear in successive issues of the Publishers' Weekly. The puzzles were constructed by J. A. Margolies of Brentano's, New York, and will all appeal to those who are interested in books. We will give prizes of $25, $15, and $10 to the three persons who send in the correct answers to the Publishers' Weekly with the best article of a thousand words on "Book Epidemics—Why They Come and Go," that is, we want to know why everyone who bought Coué last year is buying Cross Word Puzzles this year. Contributions to be considered must be postmarked on or before March 9. Employees of the R. R. Bowker Company are debarred from this contest.

The printer has tried to make this contest much more difficult. Last week he insisted on spelling goddess in 28 vertical with one d; foiled in that he put in two goddesses and left out 38 vertical all together. It should have been East Indies (Abbr.). We've explained that this is not fair, and trust he is apologetic.

A New Byron Booklist

IN connection with an exhibit of Byron literature held by the First Edition Club in London this winter, a bibliographical catalog of Byron books and manuscripts has been printed, and copies are for sale by the Publishers' Weekly, as American agent, at $10. The completeness of the exhibit was made possible thru the generous interest of John Murray and T. J. Wise, who supplied the material shown, and both supplied information used in the catalog. There has been no complete bibliography of Byron books available, and this should fill a real need. There are listed full details as to all first editions, including transcripts of the title-pages, sizes of pages, etc. The book has been printed at the Curwen Press in handsome quarto, and 500 copies have been printed for England and America.

English Books 1924

THE first yearly volume of Whitaker's "Cumulative Book List" covering the year 1924 is ready, a bound volume of 200 pages, printed in classification by subjects and indexed by author and title. Each entry gives the size of the book, number of pages and price in varying bindings. The classified method permits American dealers having special interest in certain subjects to make a careful study of what has come out during the year. In this respect it differs from the "English Catalog," which will be ready very shortly and the contents of which are arranged by author and title. An example of how this subject index can be used to the bookseller's advantage can be seen in such a subject as Oriental Books, of which there are two pages; or Art, covering four pages; or Music, Sports, etc.

Pulp Embargo From Canada

CANADIAN pulp and paper interests are making strong efforts to put into effect the legislation calling for an embargo on Canadian pulp wood, which passed the Canadian Houses of Parliament and is awaiting government enactment. The American interests are equally emphatic in their opinion that such a development would be very unfortunate not only for the paper trade but the publishing interests. They point out that mills for turning wood into pulp cannot be erected quickly and easily and that to shut off American mills completely from the Canadian wood supply would do lasting damage to the American publishing business. They also point out that such bulwarks against international trade might lead the two countries to commercial reprisals as justifiable, and that such a situation would be bad for both countries. An embargo on American coal into Canada would be as unfortunate as an embargo on Canadian pulp wood into the United States.

Charles M. Roe Dies Suddenly

CHARLES M. ROE, head of the religious literature department of George H. Doran Company and one of the best known bookmen of the country, died suddenly on February 6th while at Jackson, Miss. Mr. Roe had been in the best of health, and no report of illness had been received at the home office during his present trip. His regular route had brought him to Jackson, Miss., where after making a call at the Baptist Bookstore and lunching with the manager he packed up his books at the hotel where he was found by the porter in lasting sleep.

Mr. Roe was born in Rockton, Ill., on October 15, 1869, son of a Baptist minister, and began his long connection with publishing at the American Baptist Publication Society, Chicago, in 1891. He was branch manager of that business until 1906, when he became general manager of the Society's publishing business in the Philadelphia office. Five years later, in 1911, he joined Fleming H. Revell Company, still keeping his contact with religious book publishing and distribution. In January, 1914, he became general manager for the Standard Publishing Company of Cincinnati, where he developed very successfully its publishing business.

In 1918 Mr. Doran, who had known him since his first entrance into the business, invited him to become manager of his large department for religious literature, and, in handling the business of that department, all his life-long experience in planning religious books, printing, publishing and distributing them came into full play. To an extraordinary extent he was able to carry himself all the varied responsibilities of such a department, which at the time of his death was a publishing business in itself, with an issue of 150 to 200 books a year. The business was non-sectarian, and over it all Mr. Roe kept a detached and disinterested control, and, after the contracts had been made and the book planning done, he covered a large part of the most important territory himself with his fine selling enthusiasm. Few, if any, men in the American book-trade have ever had a more complete knowledge of the special field of religious books and few have given it such unstinted devotion.

Mr. Roe leaves behind him a widow, Mary Kohlsaas Roe, East Orange, N. J.; a son, Charles K. Roe, subscription manager for Doubleday, Page & Company; and two daughters, Elinor and Elizabeth. He was an active member of the Masonic Order, he was instrumental in securing the publication of a number of important Masonic books in close cooperation with the Masonic Service Association. He was also a member of the Loyal Legion and an active member of the Audubon Society of America.

Communication An Open Letter

New Zealand Retail Booksellers Ass'n
Wellington, New Zealand,
20th December, 1924.

Editor, Publishers' Weekly:

It is with pleasure I have to advise that our President, Mr. H. C. South, has arrived back in New Zealand safe and sound, feeling greatly benefited by the trip and by the experience gained overseas.

Mr. South, at the recent Annual Conference conducted under the auspices of the above Association, reported that while in America he was treated in a most hospitable manner by publishers and booksellers and given a wonderful time everywhere he went.

I was directed by the Conference to convey to the Publishers and Booksellers of America and to your good self the most sincere thanks and appreciation of the Booksellers of New Zealand for the many courtesies extended to our President, who speaks in glowing terms of the splendid treatment meted out to him.

You will, I am sure, realize that it is rather a large order to thank the publishers and booksellers individually who extended their hospitality to Mr. South and if you would be so good as to do so thru the columns of your paper, my Association would indeed be greatly indebted to you.

With best wishes from the New Zealand Booksellers.

FRANK ROSS, Secretary.

Communication Canadian Convention

The Canadian Booksellers' and Stationers' Association

President's Office, 157 Bank St.,
Ottawa, February 3rd, 1925.

Editor, Publishers' Weekly:

Just to let the trade know we have decided that the Convention of the Canadian Booksellers' and Stationers' Association is to be held in Ottawa at the Chateau Laurier on June 9th, 10th, and 11th.

We will be glad to welcome any booksellers from our good neighbors to meet with us, and any officers of the Publishers' Association.

It will be an opportune time to visit our beautiful city at its best, and I am sure a welcome will wait all who may plan to visit their Canadian brothers in business.

Further announcement will be sent you regarding the nature of our program.

A. H. JARVIS,
President.

Periodical Notes

A NEW weekly, the New Yorker, designed to reflect metropolitan life "in wit, satire and fact" will appear early in February. Harold Ross, formerly editor of the Stars and Stripes, famous A. E. F. organ, later of the American Legion Weekly and Judge, will be editor-in-chief. The board of advisory editors consists of Alice Duer Miller, Dorothy Parker, Edna Ferber, Rea Irvin, Newman Levy, Alexander Woolcott and Ralph Barton.

Personal Notes

JOHN MACRAE, president of E. P. Dutton & Company and president of the National Association of Book Publishers, sailed for London last Saturday on his usual spring trip. The variety of legislative matters that is now pending and which touch upon the book business has placed the officers of the Publishers' Association under continued pressure for the last few weeks, and while Mr. Macrae is abroad J. W. Hiltman, president of D. Appleton & Company, and vice chairman of the Executive Committee of the Publishers' Association, will assume the responsibilities.

HARRY BURTON, manager of Messrs. Foster Brown Co., Limited, Montreal, for 12 years, has resigned his position and will enter business under his own name. The business will be known as Burton Limited, and will be located after March 1st at 597 St. Catherine St., W. Montreal.

Spring Lines of the Publishers and Some of the Men Who Will Show Them

INFORMATION FOR THE TRADE AS TO THE TERRITORY COVERED BY THE TRAVELERS OF WHOM IT HAS BEEN POSSIBLE TO COLLECT DATA, WITH SHORT SKETCHES OF SOME OF THEM AND A BRIEF DESCRIPTION OF THE NEW PUBLICATIONS.

The Abingdon Press

Travelers:

RICHARD G. FARRELL (New York and vicinity, Atlantic Coast, part of New England).

AMOS L. BETTS (New England).

HAROLD J. NORTHCOTT (Chicago, Central West, Southwest and Northwest).

HARRY F. KEISER (Michigan, Ohio and Indiana).

MRS. BERT BETTS (California).

JOHN J. RITT (Kentucky, Tennessee, Alabama, Louisiana, Georgia and Mississippi).

J. J. BRAUER (Oregon, Washington and Idaho).

AMONG the important books on the Abingdon Press spring list are "The Political Awakening of the East" by George Mathew Dutcher, which discusses political progress in Egypt, India, China, Japan and the Philippines; "Out-of-Doors With Jesus" by Bishop William A. Quayle, sermons centering in the out-of-door associations and intimations of Jesus; "Life's Highest Loyalty" by James M. Campbell; "Current Week-Day Religious Education" by Philip Henry Lotz; "Outline Studies in Old Testament History" by Adele Tuttle McEntire; "Hebrew Life and Times" by Marion O. Hawthorne; "A Year of Primary Programs" by Lucy Stock Chapin; "Child Labor and the Social Conscience" by Davis Wasgatt Clark; and "Out Into Life" by Douglas Horton, an excellent book of helpful suggestions for young men.

D. Appleton & Co.

Travelers:

LEON WELKER (Southwest, South and part of the Middle West.)

B. F. CURRAN (Chicago, Kansas City, St. Louis, Indianapolis, Cincinnati and Detroit).

JOHN HOVENDON

President, Brotherhood of Commercial Travelers

The Brotherhood of Commercial Travelers honored itself in electing John Hovendon to the presidency this year. He was its founder and for forty years has acted as secretary. Neither his whiskers nor his genial disposition show any sign of age.

GEORGE H. QUACKENBUSH (Rochester, Buffalo, Cleveland, Pittsburgh, Louisville, Milwaukee, Madison, Eau Claire, Duluth, Minneapolis, St. Paul, Dubuque and the Pacific Coast).

WARD McCLELLAND (New England, New York State, Pennsylvania and the Middle West).

EMIL HEIKEL (Boston, Philadelphia and New York City).

F. A. CLINCH, Sales Manager (Canada).

THE Appleton spring list is headed by a new Edith Wharton novel, "The Mother's Recompense," a story of modern fashionable society, that Mrs. Wharton depicts so knowingly. Emerson Hough left a completed novel at the time of his death entitled "The Ship of Souls," a tale of the Canadian wilderness, also to be published this spring. George Gibbs, another strong Appleton author, has two books this year, one a novel "The Love of Monsieur," the other a book of wisdom, "How to Stay Married." Laurence W. Meynell is a new author whose novel, "Mockbeggar," is being emphasized as unusually brilliant. Among the books by new novelists Appleton has Dorothy A. B. Terrell's "Last Year's Nest"; Rosamund Nugent's "Cobweb Palace"; Hugh M. Kahler and Donald G. Herring's "MacIvor's Folly." Laurie York Erskine has written "The Confidence Man," which with Natalie Sumner Lincoln's "The Missing Initial" should amuse devotees of the crook-detective-mystery novel. The fiction for men and boys this year includes titles by Ralph Henry Barbour, Fitzhugh Green and others. The Appleton general list contains such important titles as the biography of "Saint-Beuve" by Lewis Freeman Mott; David Starr Jordan's great work, "Fishes"; "Unknown Tribes—Uncharted Seas" by Lady Richmond Brown; a popular handbook entitled "Colds: Cause, Treatment, and Prevention" by Dr. Russell L. Cecil, and a volume of essays by Robert Lynd, "The Peal of the Bells." The dramatic section of the list has a number of new one-act plays in the 50 cent series, a new Shay anthology, plays by Zona Gale and Wilbur Daniel Steele and an important book on the drama by Barrett H. Clark, "Study of the Modern Drama."

The Atlantic Monthly Press, Inc.

Travelers:

WALTER R. KOHR (New York City and the East, Chicago and Middle West, Text Books).

LAWRENCE W. HOYT (New England and Middle West).

HUGH S. ELLIOTT (Western Coast).

WALTER I. LYNCH (South and the Middle West).

THE important feature of the spring Atlantic list is naturally enough the publication of the three fine adventure stories, that were among those submitted for the Charles Boardman Hawes Prize. The unanimous choice of the judges for the prize was "The Scarlet Cockerel" by Clifford M. Sublette, a sixteenth-century tale of the French Huguenot colonists in the Carolinas. Among the manuscripts submitted in the contest, two were of such outstanding merit they were retained for publication, they are "Old Brig's Cargo" by Henry A. Pulsford and "The Clutch of the Corsican" by Alfred H. Bill. Among other Atlantic publications for the spring are "From Infancy to Childhood" by Richard M. Smith; "Kelsey's Rural Guide"; "The Soul's Sincere Desire" by Glenn Clark; "Bucolic Beatitudes" by Rusticus; "The 8:45 (Extracts from the Diary of John Skinner, a Commuter)" by Robert M. Gay, and "The Little Garden for Little Money" by Kate Brewster.

JAMES A. McCANN (New York, Boston and Philadelphia).

H. T. OLSEN (larger cities Middle West and Pacific Coast).

W. F. CODY (Middle West and South).

C. F. Rice (New York City, Eastern States and New England).

THE two leading spring books of the Bobbs-Merrill Co., both fiction and non-fiction, are centered about Abraham Lincoln. The novel is Irving Bacheller's "Father Abraham," to be published February 16th, and there is Dr. William E. Barton's "The Life of Abraham Lincoln." On the list are novels of many representative types starting with Alexander Black's "Stacey"; Franz Molnar's first novel published in English, "Prisoners"; "The Wife-Ship Woman" by Hugh Pendexter; a Western novel, "The Sage Hen" by F. R. Buckley; "Carnival Colors," by Maude Radford Warren; Earl Derr Biggers' mystery novel, "The House Without a Key"; Arthur Stringer's railroad romance, "Power," and a play in blank verse entitled "There Came Two Women" by Herbert Quick. Non-fiction titles of interest are Paul Wilstach's "Along the Pyrenees"; "Making the Most of Your Genius" by Mary Austin; "The Man Nobody Knows" by Bruce Barton, and "Architecture and the Allied Arts" by Alfred M. Brooks.

MRS CHARLES BRADLEY

Market Square Book Shop, Providence

Mrs. Bradley with Miss Lustig opened her bookshop two years ago last October. It aimed to be "something different" and in this it has succeeded. The parlor floor of an old fashioned building gives the shop a "personal" atmosphere which is appreciated by many book buyers and book renters in Providence.

Albert & Charles Boni

Travelers:

PERCY A. LORING (New England, Northeastern Seaboard and Middle West; Headquarters, 27 Brahms St., Roslindale, Mass).

WALLACE WACHOB (Middle West, Pacific Coast, Texas and Louisiana; Headquarters, 165 Post St., San Francisco, Calif.).

PAUL HINRICHS (New York, Baltimore, Philadelphia and Washington; Headquarters, 39 West 8th St., New York City).

CHARLES BONI, JR. (New York City).

THE A. and C. Boni spring list has many items of literary interest. A notable example is the facsimile reissue of the famous magazine of the "nineties": "The Yellow Book," consisting of 13 volumes retailing at $45.00. Among the fiction featured is "The Prince and the Princess" by Claude C. Washburn; "Trimblerrigg" by Laurence Housman, a deft satire on an English political giant said to be Lloyd George; a first novel "Schooling" by Paul Selver; a new book by Hugh De Selincourt, the author of the much discussed "One Little Boy" entitled "Young Mischief and the Perfect Pair"; and "Card Castle" by Alec Waugh. A book of great interest to the puzzle fan, cross word or otherwise, is "The Mental Agility Book."

Brentano's

Travelers:

JOHN T. WITSIL (East).

EDWARD B. PARTRIDGE (Middle West).

FRANK A. COOMBS (West Pacific Coast).

"THE VIRGIN FLAME" by Ernest Pascal, the author of the successful "The Dark Swan" of last year heads the spring announcement of Brentano's. It is a story of a young musician and his fight against the golden lure of writing Jazz. A Saltus revival is in full force and Brentano is aiding this by reprinting his complete works, many of which have long been out of print. A second series of both "Great Sea Stories" and "Great Pirate Stories" has been compiled by Joseph Lewis French ready for the spring trade. S. P. B. Mais has a new novel "Perissa"; Samuel Spewack tells of a colorful personage of the theater in his "Presenting-Morris Gest"; and one of the most prominent of Jewish Rabbis, Stephen S. Wise presents his own story, in "My Thirty Years' Battle." Among other Brentano spring books are Philip Barry's play "The Youngest"; "The Problem of Atlantis" by Lewis Spense; several travel books; a new popular priced edition of "Leon Bakst, His Life and Art" by André Levinson, a beautifully illustrated volume; Brian Brown's new volume "The Wisdom of the Hebrews"; and a popular priced guidebook on Florida entitled "Going to Florida" by Frank M. Dunbaugh, Jr.

JOHN F. WINTERS (Eastern States).
 JOHN A. BELL (Middle West).
 F. W. OWEN (Pacific Coast).

THE CENTURY COMPANY offers for the spring a group of novels of fine possibilities beginning with Gilbert Frankau's latest, "Life and Erica." Mr. Frankau has long been a best selling novelist in England and with the publication of his "The Love Story of Aliette Brunton" established the foundation for the same popularity in this country. Then follows "Martha" by Percy Marks, the author of one of last year's best sellers, "The Plastic Age"; Marie Conway Oemler's "His Wife-in-Law"; "Jungle Born" by John Eyton, an animal story reminiscent of Kipling's "Jungle Books," and "O'Malley of Shanganagh" by Donn Byrne, in the same vein as "Messer Marco Polo." In the field of non-fiction are: "Beyond the Utmost Purple Rim" by E. Alexander Powell; a new book by Anne Bosworth Greene, the author of the charming "The Lone Winter," entitled "Summer on Dipper Hill"; and "The Lost Oases" by A. M. E. H. ZIEGLER (New York and New England).
W. A. BRITTON (South and smaller cities of Middle West).

DORAN fiction announcements, both spring and fall, always seem to make very choice reading, and the new 1925 spring list is no exception. Here are merely a few of the high spots: A new Wodehouse, the man who wrote "Leave It to Psmith," entitled "Bill the Conqueror"; "The Reckless Age," by Philip Gibbs; of a more esoteric character is Osbert Sitwell's "Triple Fugue"; Somerset Maugham's "The Painted Veil"; a smartly titled new Arlen, "May Fair"; and Elinor Wylie's "The Venetian Glass Nephew." In addition, there will be books by Irvin S. Cobb, Albert Payson Terhune, Frank Packard, J. S. Fletcher, E. F. Benson, Cyril Hume and Conan Doyle. Non-fiction titles that look good are: "Open Confession," by Marie Corelli; "The Bright Island," by Arnold Bennett; "Everyman's 'Life of Jesus,'" by James Moffatt; a new book about international problems by Philip Gibbs, entitled "Ten Years After"; $2.50 editions of the Lord Frederic Hamilton books; "Paris: Yesterday and Today," by Ralph Nevill, and Robert Cortes Holliday's "Literary Lanes and Other Byways."

Dorrance & Co.

Travelers:

FRANK A. COOMBS.
WILLIAM H. DORRANCE.

FIRST on the spring fiction list of Dorrance & Co. is "'49, a Novel of Gold," by George W. Cronyn, it is an historical novel of those gold-mad days of California. Other novels are "The Man Who Turned Mex" by Paul Bailey, and "The Door to the Moor" by Millie Bird Vandeburg. "A Modern Pilgrimage to Palestine," by

L. B. Pemberton, which leads from California to Cairo via European centers; and "My Heart in the Hills" by Charles Hansen, of camping in the Colorado mountains, are two notable non-fiction items. With them belong "God is Writing a Book," by Howard L. Waldo, M.D. "The Banquet and Other Poems" by Frances Fletcher, Vol. 18 in "Contemporary Poets," is the only book of verse accepted for spring publication in this series.

J. B. POST (New York City).
J. B. STEERS (Washington, Baltimore, and the South).

ALTHO "Love" by Elizabeth," the author of "The Enchanted April," is not scheduled for publication until April, it is perhaps the most important fiction item on the Doubleday spring list. Spring always seems an appropriate time for a book by "Elizabeth," and it is said, the sales starting in the spring, shoot up way past the 60,000 copy mark. There are other fiction items of interest, some of which are, "Secret Gold" by Alice M. Williamson; "Afterwards" by Mrs. Belloc-Lowndes; a western tale by Clarence E. Mulford, "Cottonwood Gulch"; "Duc-dame" by John Cowper Powys. Ellen Glasgow, the Virginian novelist, has written "Barren Ground." Then there are two mystery-detective novels, "The Dream Detective" by Sax Rohmer and "Dr. S. O. S." by Lee Thayer; a new Rider Haggard, "Queen of the Dawn"; "Boxer and Beauty" by Alfred Ollivant; "Overheard" by Stacy Aumonier; "O. Henry Memorial Award Prize Stories of 1924" and "The Treasure" by Selma Lagerlöf. The non-fiction list includes among other things a new edition of "The Library of Poetry and Song"; "Seventy-Five Years of White House Gossip" by Edna M. Colman; "Jefferson and Monticello" by Paul Wiltach; "Dramatic Values" by C. E. Montague; "An Engineer's Note Book" by Wm. McFee; "Tales You Won't Believe" by Gene Stratton-Porter; new editions of Vallery-Radot's "The Life of Pasteur" and "The Greek View of Life" by G. Lowes Dickinson.

J. H. Sears & Company, Inc.

Travelers:

LOUIS M. LEVY (larger cities of the Middle West).

M. BRUCE HOVENDON (North Atlantic Seaboard, including the territory east of Pittsburgh).

Special Representatives:

HERBERT M. CALDWELL (west of Denver and on the Pacific Coast).

MESSRS. STOLL AND EDWARDS (in the South, Southwest and Central West).

GEORGE J. MCLEOD, LTD., Toronto, Ont.
(in the Dominion of Canada).

J. H. SEARS & COMPANY is offering in the non-copyright field books possessing unusual quality at a very low price. In addition to its initial publications, a number of new items have recently been placed on the list. Noteworthy among these are the standard sets, embracing the most popular works of Kipling, Stevenson, Hawthorne, Holmes, Cooper, Dumas and Victor Hugo. Another feature of the line is the Royal Red Library—standard classics in two volumes—in red artificial leather, put up in attractive boxes. Twenty-five new titles are being added to the popular American Home Classics, also ten titles are being added to the Royal Blue Library. The Webster's "Daily Use Dictionary" in cloth and artificial leather continues to be one of the outstanding items of the spring season.

J. H. Sears & Company announce for publication later in the year an interesting line of juveniles, and will announce later the Royal Gold Library, a charming and highly artistic series of poetry, essays and belles lettres.

Thomas Seltzer, Inc.

MORRIS COLMAN (New York City).

F. J. SLOANE (East and Middle West).

WALLACE WACHOB (West).

"THE Guermentes Way," the third and fourth parts of Marcel Proust's remarkable "Remembrance of Things Past," seems the most important feature of the Seltzer spring list. Among other outstanding fiction titles are "The Golden Door" by Evelyn Scott; "Little Novels of Sicily" by Giovanni Verga, translated by D. H. Lawrence; "The Woman I Am" by Amber Lee; "The Groote Park Murder" by Freeman Wills Crofts; "Lifting Mist" by Austin Harrison; "Anna's" by C. Nina Boyle. Non-fiction titles are, "The Challenge of Childhood: Studies in Personality and Behavior" by Ira S. Wile; "The Race Myth: A Study of the Notion of Race" by Theophile Simar; "War-Time Addresses, 1917-1921" by Judan Leon Magnes; "Processional" by John Howard Lawson; and "Scenario" by Debbie H. Silver.

A. W. Shaw Company

Travelers:

E. C. HOOPER (East).
E. G. TUTTLE (West).

THE A. W. Shaw Company is publishing a long list of business books including the first "Harvard Business Report"; "Office Management, Principles and Practice" by William H. Leffingwell; "Accounting Principles Underlying Federal Income Taxes, 1926" by E. L. Kohler; "Purchasing Power of the Consumer" by Wm. A. Berridge, Emma A. Winslow and Richard A. Flinn, and "Retail Method of Inventory" by M. P. McNair.

Simon & Schuster, Inc.

Travelers:

RICHARD L. SIMON (New York, New England, large cities).
CHARLES R. MARSHALL (New York and Metropolitan territory).
DESMOND FITZGERALD (Far West).
CHAS. S. STONE (South).

THE high spots on the Simon & Schuster list consist of several new Cross Word Puzzle items including "The Celebrities' Cross Word Puzzle Book"; "The Cross Word Puzzle Constructors' Book" by Jane Black and Ralph Schoolman; and "The Bible Cross Word Puzzle Book." Among other important books are "The Poker Book" by H. T. Webster and George F. Wortz; "Poems" by Irwin Edman and "Poems" by Maxwell Anderson; "A Million and One Nights or The Romantic History of the Motion Picture" by Terry Ramsaye, and "Verdi" by Franz Werfel a novel-biography.

Small, Maynard & Co.

Travelers:

E. J. VASS (Boston, New York, Philadelphia and Chicago).
WALTER I. LYNCH (Southern States and Pacific Coast).
LAWRENCE W. HOYT (Middle West, New England and Eastern States).

"THE BEST SHORT STORIES OF 1924" edited by Edward J. O'Brien is the spring headliner of Small, Maynard. Among other important fiction titles are "The Valiant Gentleman" by M. J. Stuart; "The Red Lacquer Case" by Patricia Wentworth; a new mystery novel by Edgar Wallace, "The Missing Millions"; "Wild Asses" by James G. Dunton, a novel of undergraduate life at Harvard; "Those Difficult Years" by Faith Baldwin; "The Whispering Lane" by Fergus Hume. Non-fiction includes "Margery the Medium" by J. Malcolm Bird; "The Theory of Mah Jong" by W. Lock Wei; "We Visit Old Inns" by Mary Harrod Northend; and "The Best News Stories of 1924" edited by Joseph Anthony.

LAWRENCE W. HOYT

Representing Small, Maynard & Co.

Lawrence W. Hoyt, one of the three travelers for Small, Maynard & Co., has represented them for the past two years. Previous to 1923 he spent five years as an inside man with Houghton Mifflin Co. where he received the good training that equipped him for the marked success he is having.

Frederick A. Stokes Co.

Travelers:

HENRY F. SAVAGE (New York City, Boston, Philadelphia, Washington, Baltimore, Pittsburgh, and large cities of New England).
THOMAS F. MAHONY (Pacific Coast, Chicago and other cities in the Middle West).
JAMES L. NERNEY (South and smaller cities in the Middle West and East).
EDWARD G. LARSON (New York City).
H. M. SNYDER (Far East).

OF the Stokes novels scheduled for spring publication three, strangely enough, are business romances, two of them with department store backgrounds: Lucille Van Slyke's "Nora Pays," the story of a woman owner of a smart Fifth Avenue Specialty Shop; John T. McIntyre's "A Young Man's Fancy," a tale of a youth who falls in love with a wax girl in a department store window; and Horace Annesley Vachell's "Watling's," the story of a great English merchant. Other fiction titles are,

PERCY A. BEACH

Beach's Bookshop, Indianapolis

Percy A. Beach, whose shop in the Spink Arms Hotel is one of the most attractive in the Mid-West is a keen bibliophile and those associated with him in business, including friend wife, are all con amore biblioplists.

"Beau Geste" by Captain P. C. Wren, a tale of the Foreign Legion; "Shaken Down," by Alice MacGowan and Perry Newberry; Honoré Willsie Morrow's "The Lost Speech" of Abraham Lincoln; "The Prince of Washington Square" by Harry F. Liscomb; and "High Noon" by Crosbie Garstin, author of "The Owls' House."

On the Stokes non-fiction list, a big seller should be Bucky Harris' "Playing the Game," the complete story of the rise to baseball fame of the popular young manager of the 1924 World's Series Champions.

Stoll & Edwards Co., Inc.

Travelers:

- JOHN COYLE (West of Chicago and Canada).
H. S. STOLL (East and South).

A. A. PETERS (Pacific Coast).
A. S. BRIEFER (New York and Smaller Eastern Cities).
L. CROSTHWAIT (South).
B. P. O'BRIEN (Illinois).

NOTABLE new additions to the universal line are "My Trip," a record book for those who travel at home or abroad. "Jimmy Book," a new loose leaf record book for boys and girls. "My Him Book," a new loose leaf record book for girls, in which may be collected their favorite "Hims"; "Sweet Sixteen," a gift book containing unusual candy recipes.

During March and April The Universal Press will add a number of new record books which will be offered to the trade by their representatives.

The University of Chicago Press
Travelers:

DONALD P. BEAN (General books).
R. F. HOLLOWAY (General books.)
FRANK H. LEVELL (Religious books.)
ROLLIN D. HEMENS (Educational books).

THE University of Chicago Press offers as its three most important spring books: Edgar J. Goodspeed's "The Making of the English New Testament"; "Meek Americans" by Joseph Warren Beach, hailed as a 1925 "Innocents Abroad"; and "A Manual of Style," the University of Chicago's own handbook for the man having anything to do with book-making, or publishing. Other titles included are: "The New Orthodoxy" by Edward S. Ames; "The Story of the University of Chicago" by Thomas W. Goodspeed; and Waldo F. Mitchell's "Our Banking System."

Frederick Warne & Co., Ltd.

THE Warne 1925 program includes a new "Bijou Dictionary of Synonyms and Antonyms"; "The World in the Past" by Webster Smith, and "The Kate Greenaway Almanack for 1926." Additions to the Children's book section will include "Princess Carrot-Top and Timothy," a fairy tale of to-day by Christine Chaundler and "The Careless Chicken" by Harry B. Neilson, Words by Baron Krakensides.

G. Howard Watt

Travelers:

G. HOWARD WATT.

G. HOWARD WATT will publish for the spring "The Brains of the Family" by E. J. Rath, author of "The Nervous Wreck"; "Gray Magic" by Herman Landon, a new Gray Phantom mystery story; "A Centaur of Navarre" by Charles B. Stilson; "Trouble Range" by Charles Wesley Sanders and "North Star" by Rufus King, a dog story featuring the shepherd dog (police dog) as the hero.

JAMES A. GORDON

Manager, Kilmarnock Books, St. Paul, Minn.

James A. Gordon is now the manager of "Kilmarnock Books", that delightful shop of which the St. Paul people are so proud. He has been "on the job" less than a year and already the result of his management is very gratifying to the two venturesome spirits who started the shop in 1921.

Albert Whitman & Company

Travelers:

SAML. L. DORSEY (New England States, New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Delaware, Maryland, Washington, D. C., Virginia, Texas, Oklahoma, Kansas).
C. R. GRIMM (Pennsylvania, West Virginia, South Atlantic States, Mid-Western States to Gulf).
HUGH S. ELLIOTT (Pacific Coast and all West of Montana, Colorado, Wyoming and New Mexico).
ALBERT WHITMAN (Special Accounts).

THE new Whitman juveniles announced for publication this year are, in the Just Right edition, "Famous Sky Stories" by Caroline Silver June; "Birds of a Feather" by Murlie Burns Wike;

"Northland Bird Life" by Roy J. Snell and "The Three Books" by Edna Groff Deihl. Other titles are "Today's Stories of Yesterday" edited and illustrated by Frances Kerr Cook; "Runaway Nancy" by Clara J. Denton; "The Wonderful Tree" by Carolyn Sherwin Bailey; and "Icebound in the Polar Seas" by Roy J. Snell.

Winston Company announces for the spring Ida Clyde Clarke's "Uncle Sam Needs a Wife"; four new titles in the Children's Bookshelf, including "Kidnapped," "Pinocchio," "Robinson Crusoe" and "Hans Brinker"; a new edition of Peloubet's "Bible Dictionary," and a large type self-pronouncing New Testament and Psalms. It will also feature Milton C. Work's "Auction Bridge of 1924," Mrs. Fryer's "Loose-Leaf Cook Book," "The Wonder Book of Knowledge," Hurlbut's "Story of the Bible," The Winston Simplified Dictionary, and other important publications.

The Womans Press

Traveler:

JOAN SOLLY (New York).

WOMANS Press spring books are "The Ascending Life," by Richard Roberts; "Saints and Ladies," by Clarissa Spencer; "The Star Promise," by Margaret Burton; "String of Chinese Pearls," by Welthy Honsinger Fisher, a collection of glimpses of the Chinese girl at home; "Funds and Friends," by Tolman Lee, a book on how to raise money for social work; and "Cafeteria Recipes," by Mabel E. Schadt, an excellent receipt book for the tea room and cafeteria.

Yale University Press

Travelers:

R. V. COLEMAN (New York to Chicago).
L. P. SOULE (East).
H. S. ELLIOTT (Denver and West).

DURING the early part of 1925, Yale's most important work will be that of formally launching "The Economic and Social History of the World War," edited by Professor James T. Shotwell in consultation with editorial boards in each of the leading countries. The work when finished will constitute in the neighborhood of 200 volumes and will be published in a half dozen or more different languages. There are now ready 16 volumes in English, 3 volumes in French and 2 volumes in German. Individual volumes in the series will sell to the general public but the great opportunity of the bookseller is in taking subscriptions for the entire project from banks, insurance companies, and big industrial corporations.

The Weekly Record of New Publications

THIS list aims to be a complete and accurate record of American book publications. Pamphlets will be included only if of special value. Publishers should send copies of all books promptly for annotation and entry, and the receipt of advance copies insures record simultaneous with publication. The annotations are descriptive, not critical; intended to place not to judge the books. Pamphlet material and books of lesser trade interest are listed in smaller type.

The entry is transcribed from title page when the book is sent for record. Prices are added except when not supplied by publisher or obtainable only on specific request. When not specified the binding is cloth.

Imprint date is stated [or best available date, preferably copyright date, in bracket] only when it differs from year of entry. Copyright date is stated only when it differs from imprint date: otherwise simply "c." No ascertainable date is designated thus: [n. d.]

Sizes are indicated as follows: F. (folio: over 30 centimeters high); Q (4to: under 30 cm.); O (8vo: 25 cm.); D. (12mo: 20 cm.); S. (16mo: 17½ cm.); T. (24mo: 15 cm.); sq., obl., nar., designate square, oblong, narrow.

Old and Rare Books

Edited by Frederick M. Hopkins

MARK TWAIN'S historic home at Hartford has become the property of the Hartford Women's Club and will be used as their club house.

"SOME Rare Carrolliana," with notes by Sidney Herbert Williams, who compiled the "Bibliography of Lewis Carroll," published last year, has just appeared in a privately printed limited edition of seventy-nine copies. This interesting crown quarto reproduces in facsimile a number of autograph letters, drawings and riddles, all hitherto unpublished.

THE analysis of the month's demands for modern first editions in England for the four weeks ending December 20th, based upon the desiderata printed in English trade papers, which appears in The Bookman's Journal for January, includes fifty-two authors. The ten at the head of the list are Rudyard Kipling, George Gissing, Maurice Hewlett, Charles Dickens, John Galsworthy, Joseph Conrad, Andrew Lang, W. H. Hudson, Samuel Butler and John Masefield.

EVERY Keats collector or lover of his poetry will want to see Amy Lowell's "John Keats," published yesterday by Houghton Mifflin Company. From sources which have been unavailable to other writers, Miss Lowell has been able to contribute much information about the life of the poet and to clear up some hitherto obscure points. She re-dates several of the poems, publishes nine letters by Keats and five of his poems for the first time, and a number of excerpts from recently discovered letters of Fanny Brawne which throw an entirely new light on his unhappy love story.

W. H. IRELAND'S own collection of his Shakespeare forgeries changed hands at Sotheby's in London a few weeks ago for £165. Bearing the title "A Collection of Ireland's Fabrications, 1805," the folio volume contained forty-five of Ireland's forgeries, over thirty portraits, accompanied with manuscript notes in his handwriting. It also included the 8vo. printed account, "Miscellaneous and Legal Instruments under the Hand and Seal of William Shakespeare . . . from the original MSS. in the possession of Samuel Ireland . . . 1796," inlaid to folio size. There were facsimiles of authentic and spurious signatures, the fabricated "Profession of Faith," Ann Hathaway's love letters and other letters of Shakespeare and material relating to the Ireland family.

THE frontispiece of the January Bookman's Journal is a colored print of Henson's "Ariel" Carriage, 1843, the first printed design for a power-driven aeroplane. The leading article is a story entitled "In Morocco and Gold," by R. C. Bruce Gardner. This is followed by "How James Matthew Barrie 'Commenced Author'," "Thomas Bewick, Artist and Philosopher," and "The Tales of Somadeva of Kashmir," by Dr. L. D. Barnett. The regular departments take more space than usual this month and are of more than usual interest. This number, too, has many interesting illustrations. The Book- man's Journal, published in this country at the Publishers' Weekly office, takes high rank in its chosen field. It steadily improves with each volume and is growing more and more indispensable to the well-informed book and print collector.

THE library of Elbert A. Young of St. Paul, Minn., and selections from the library of Guy M. Walker of this city, were sold at the Anderson Galleries February 2d and 3d, 565 lots fetching $6,012.50. A few of the more important lots and the prices realized were the following: Eugene Field's "Writings in Prose and Verse," 12 vols., boards, New York, 1896, Japan paper edition, $490; Kipling's "Writings," 28 vols., cloth, New York, 1897-1920, Outward Bound edition, $57.50; Motley's "Works," 17 vols., levant morocco, New York, 1900, Netherlands edition, $125; Stevenson's "Works," 26 vols., buckram, New York, 1895-1901, Thistle edition, $87.50.

J. B. LIPPINCOTT COMPANY

"Amusing glimpses of the great and near great."—Amy Loveman in The Saturday Review.

"Racy, gossipy and amusing pages."—Chicago Post.

"Life gay and seamy in 'Things I Shouldn't Tell.' The author of 'Uncensored Recollections' draws the curtain and reveals European Stage crowded with men and women of distinction in various activities. Has much historical value."

—Philadelphia Record.

"Contains spicy and altogether new stories on prominent and royal figures of European society. The book is jolly good reading and very good fun."—Journal Post, Kansas City.

"Those who like revelations about the inner life of the great, the near-great, the pseudo-great and all their satellites will find this book pleasant reading for at least two winter evenings. Nor is it lacking in occasional evidence of the keener sort of perception. What the author says about Swinburne and Zola, Hugo and Oscar Wilde will delight many."

—Richmond News Leader.

When Victor Hugo gives his opinion of Zola and Sarah Bernhardt tartly comments on Swinburne, it pays to "listen in." These audacious pages whisper, also, the wit and repartee, the stories piquant and risqué, that tickled Victorian ears. They echo the revels of club and masquerade, of pranks at Baden-Baden in the old days. The episodes are related with the same flair for anecdote that made the former Book of Gossip an international sensation and stamped its author as the greatest raconteur now writing.
